

A CALL FOR PAPERS:

SOUTH AFRICAN JOURNAL OF INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

The South African Journal of International Affairs invites article submissions and special issue proposals for its forthcoming volumes.

SAIIA is a policy-oriented, peer-reviewed and interdisciplinary forum for discussion on international affairs affecting Africa in general or South Africa in particular. Published since 1993 under the auspices of the award-winning South African Institute of International Affairs, SAIJA offers original and review articles from varied sources, in four issues annually. SAIJA operates on a constant workflow basis (submission deadlines are rolling), with online publication of accepted articles possible ahead of issue dates.

Prospective authors may submit their articles via the SAIJA Scholar One website, detailed below. Prospective guest editors are encouraged to contact the Editor, Dr Martha Bridgman, at saija.editor@saiia.org.za, with a concept note outlining the themed issue and proposed dates.

Articles must be original in content. They should analyse significant policy issues in international affairs, with a view to offering constructive solutions. Articles may, inter alia, deal with global/continental governance, multilateralism and political/economic integration, the strengthening of democracy and political party systems in Africa, the protection of human rights, international trade and investment, the governance of natural resources, security and conflict, migration and refugees, religion and ethnicity, the role of state and non-state actors in international affairs, or the influence of emerging powers on Africa and the world.

We especially encourage submissions from African authors, but welcome submissions from across the globe.

All submissions should be made online via the Taylor & Francis Submission Portal (<https://rp.tandfonline.com/submission/login>). Articles should be between 6000 and 9000 words, excluding references and other endnotes. References should appear in Chicago Notes style (endnotes). See the SAIIA style guide for more details.
